After four years of championing the fine art of representational painting, the Painter-Stainers' Company and the Lynn Foundation are delighted to co-sponsor, for the fifth year, The Lynn Painter-Stainers Prize. With prize money totalling £22,500, this competition is designed to encourage creative representational painting and promote the skill of draughtsmanship.

The first prize will be announced at the private view on Monday 16th November. In only a few years, the competition has become extremely popular with young contemporary painters. The young artist award of £2,500, which will also be awarded, is a coveted prize that aims to promote the tradition of portrait painting and support fresh new talent.

The judges this year are artists Mick Rooney RA, Daphne Todd OBE PPRP NEAC and Susan Wilson; Director of the Flowers Gallery, Angela Flowers and Andrew Wilton, visiting research fellow at Tate Britain. The judges selected 82 works from 800 entries to form this unique exhibition.
