JOSEF HERMAN (1911- 2000) - CENTENARY EXHIBITION

paintings and works on paper

22 April - 5 June 2011

Touring to the National Library of Wales Aberystwyth

15 June - 15 July 2011

Josef Herman was the foreign artist who put the British working class on a pedestal. He never followed any fashions in art and never courted for favours and as a result, he remained an outsider. He is probably best remembered for his rendering of Welsh miners, as he lived in Ystradgynlais for 11 years from 1944 onwards..

Herman was best appreciated during the fifties and sixties when he was shown in a great number of one-man exhibitions throughout the UK

A major retrospective at the Whitechapel Gallery in 1956 and a retrospective at the Camden Art Centre in 1980 were the last time he had public galleries showing his work in London,

The Boundary Gallery hosted numerous one-man shows of his work 1987,1988,1990, 1994, 1996, 1998, 2000, 2002, 2004, 2009. We shall be displaying hitherto unseen works from his Ystradgynlais years and further paintings and works on paper.

Herman s works are represented in many museums in the UK as well as abroad.
